Information Governance in the NHS

A Specialist Briefing by UCLPartners and Information Governance Services Ltd

UCLPartners is one of the largest academic health science partnerships in the world, encompassing more than 40 health care providers and universities that together serve a population of six million people in London and surrounding areas. They aim to harness research and innovation for excellent patient care and a healthier population.

Information Governance Services Ltd is a data protection and information governance consultancy firm that provides expert advice to clients, predominantly in the healthcare setting. They specialise in working with clients who are either in the NHS, or who sell services to the NHS.

UCLPartners deliver monthly NHS Insights briefings, bridging the gap between industry and the NHS, and bi-monthly Specialist Briefings to deep dive into specific subjects.

IG briefing

Information Governance is the process of managing and sharing information appropriately, particularly personal and sensitive information relating to patients. The NHS provides a framework to ensure that this information is dealt with legally, securely, efficiently and effectively, in order to deliver the best possible care.

This 60-minute online briefing focuses on the importance of Information Governance in your business and how to get it right when working with the NHS.

Presented By:

The Information Governance Services training team vary from experienced consultants to up and coming advisors. They are all passionate about supporting health innovators.

It covers:

- Introduction to Data Protection and Information Governance
- Why it matters – especially within the healthcare/NHS setting
- What the NHS expects from you
- Benefits of good information management for your business
- Quick wins and things to get right from the start
